> Captain Montgomery, of the Dexier, gives further particulars of the tragesly on his boat on her last down trip. The second mate of the boat was knocked down by a colored deck band, with a billet of wood, and lay for some time senseless. When he recovered sufficiently he went up stairs, got a revolver, and sturning shot the negro. Capt Montgomery advised him to go to New Or leans and give himself up, promising to do whatever he could in his behalf. This was at 2 o'clock in the morning. At o'clock the second mate, with two nen, lowered the yawl and went ashore. This incensed Capt. Montgomery, and he landed for the yawi, and sent four men in pursuit of the mate. He was pursued to the railroad, after shooting a field negro on the way, and was arrested by the sheriff. Before the coroner's jury a negro swore that the first mate had advised the second mate to shoot the negre, and he, fearing trouble, left the boat and has not since been heard of By last reports from Shreveport and
